Mission Statement

"Relief & Reconciliation International AISBL" (R&R) is a Belgian non-profit organisation, established on 2 January 2013, whose mission is to combine peacebuilding with humanitarian aid in response to the Syrian crisis. In areas of conflict, R&R is uniting moral authorities of different communities and groups around a common cause: the future of the youth. Under the auspices of a local steering committee and based upon the legal personality of its registered Lebanese branch, R&R established a first Peace Centre in the Akkar Governorate of Lebanon in July 2013: a place that serves as an open house for young people from different communities, Lebanese and Syrians alike. R&R has also opened three non-formal camp schools and two outreach centres in the region that have provided for regular education to over 1,800 Syrian refugees and Lebanese, pertaining to basic literacy and numeracy, school support and vocational training.

Project

The project "Interreligious Youth Network for Peace and Children Rights in Akkar" seeks to establish an interreligious (youth) network on children's rights in cooperation with actors from different religious communities.
